

ULLMANN, Walter

Medieval Political Thought

London, Penguin Books, 1965.

HG 1273

Preface	7
Preface to 1970 edition	10
Introduction	11
1. THE FOUNDATIONS: THE ROMAN AND BIBLICAL BACKGROUND	19
I. The Roman Church in the Roman Empire	19
II. Roman imperial political ideas	32
III. Growth of Roman-biblical ideas	38
2. THE WESTERN ORIENTATION	45
I. Imperial Caesaropapism	45
II. The King by the Grace of God	53
III. Fusion of Roman and Frankish ideas	58
IV. The concept of Europe	66
3. THE POST-CAROLINGIAN DEVELOPMENT	74
I. Clericalization of political thought	74
II. The great forgeries	80
III. Political ideas in royal coronations	85
IV. The political ideology of the Western Empire	91
4. THE HIEROCRATIC DOCTRINE IN ITS MATURITY	100
I. Main characteristics	100
II. Emergence of political literature	116
5. THEOCRATIC AND FEUDAL KINGSHIP	130
I. The substance of royal theocracy	130
II. The defence of the thesis	136
III. Kingship in England and constitutionalism	145
6. THE REVIVAL OF ARISTOTLE AND ITS BACKGROUND	159
I. Practical manifestations of the ascending thesis	159
II. Incipient humanism and natural science	164
III. Aristotelian principles	167
7. THE NEW ORIENTATION	174
I. Thomism	174
II. The universal state	186
III. Territorial sovereignty	195
8. THE SOVEREIGNTY OF THE PEOPLE	200
I. Popular basis of the Ruler's power	200

II.	The people as sovereign legislator	204
III.	The city-state	214
IV.	Conciliarism	219
V.	Conservatism and tradition	222
9. CONCLUSION		229
Select bibliography		233
Appendix A: supplementary bibliography		239
Appendix B: additional bibliography		241
Index		248